The Radio Control Club of Detroit is a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation and advancement of model aviation in both youth and adults.

At this year's show members of the club will have many of their highly crafted and realistic models on display at Roseville's Macomb Mall on March 14th & 15th in the Kohl's Court.

The display will include Scale models of vintage aircraft, World War II and modern era fighters, helicopters and examples of typical R.C. planes. RCCD club members will be present to explain how the models are constructed and flown also to answer any questions you may have about the hobby.

Throughout the show club pilots will be giving visitors a chance to fly a R.C. flight simulator to see what it's really like to fly a radio controlled plane.
